The desire to lead a sustainable lifestyle is at an all-time high and the pursuit of greener living extends to a variety of life aspects ranging from cleaner driving to reduced food waste. However, switching to sustainable fabrics is one of the most significant improvements that anybody can make. And if it matters to the public, businesses must learn to embrace it too.

GLOBAL OVERVIEW

In the United States, an estimated 85% (or approximately 13 million tons annually) of textiles are thrown away. On a global scale, it is estimated that 92 million tons of textiles go to waste each year. We can compare this to having an industrial-sized dump truck filled with clothes getting tossed into a landfill every second. This colossal waste produces methane gas and toxic chemicals, all of which greatly affect the environment.

92 MILLION TONS OF
TEXTILES GO TO WASTE
EACH YEAR

By using recycled fabric to create new clothing, Inicio is taking a small positive step towards a more sustainable future. The two main types of recycled fabrics are generated from:

- » Used textiles made from recycled fabric or clothing
- » Waste materials like plastic water bottles or plastic bags
